Ever so low, ever so gently,
Whispers the angel in mine ear,
Teaching me still, chiding me never,
Heaven itself is brought more near!
Thus at the night, when day is ended,
And through the forest wails the blast,

When to the dance calleth gay music,
Hold I communion with the past!
Oh, when I feel the present lonely,
And cares oppress me, and friends depart,
Angels are near me, fail not to hear me,
And sooth the trouble of my heart.—
